

Local income tax It's about fairness

The main reason to introduce Local Income Tax is to make taxation fairer. It is not as J M Grajewski stated (Daily Echo, February 25) to hit many hard. It can't be as, in actual fact, if council tax is scrapped and replaced by local income tax, families on average income would be £450 better off and 70% of households will be better off or unaffected.

Is it fair that under the present system, families and pensioners on low income can pay more than people on much higher wages? Is it fair that under the Conservatives new plans, pensioners on low incomes would pay less than young families on exactly the same income?

I don't believe any of these things are fair. Council Tax is a fundamentally flawed and unfair tax and the only thing to do is to scrap it.

To find out how you would fare, how local income tax works and how it would save the country over £300 million visit the website www.axe-the-tax.org.uk

David Goodall

Liberal Democrat Parliamentary Spokesman - Southampton Itchen
2 Culvery Gardens, West End, Southampton SO18 3ND